

Share your hints for building stronger and more inclusive academic communities:

When we work with students as co-creators we always share any documentation before the activity and allow students to add their items to the agenda

Recognise the diversity of students and not treating all groups in exactly the same way. Being tailored to the needs of those students.

Respect the group's decisions and make their initiatives happen.

Learn from past mistakes and improve constantly

We work as a team and I keep the role of the facilitator.

There are different spaces where students are involved in professional and senior conversations so we work on creating those spaces safe for students and not overwhelming or intimidating

Think about time commitments and plan around academic rhythm

If you expect there to be many documents and evidence to read, consider providing summaries for students which use no jargon and provide a helpful explanation of terminology
