Creating Spaces for Student Participation: Practical Insights and Hints

Participation space = Safer space

Why is it so important to create a safer space?

safer space → trust → participation → community → sense of belonging

A sense of belonging from a student perspective:

- It is a feeling that you're a part of some community (e.g. family or institution) that you share the same values with. Community members need to take care of each other and create a sense of loyalty. For each member it is necessary to feel safe, creative and supported in the community.
- Feeling seen and heard, feeling and being included, having the chance to bond with other members of the community through informal activities.

Why is it so important to create a safer space?

- Space to experiment and make mistakes = Space of empowerment

The awareness that students can grow, develop their ideas, and make mistakes, learn from them, and prepare for professional and social life while receiving support and guidance from the institution creates a sense of comfort and boosts young people's confidence. A higher education institution should be like an airbag.

- A good space for meetings = A space for engagement

According to the UNICOMM Report, one of the main reasons why students engage in academic life is the opportunity to connect with others. So let's ensure friendly conditions for meetings and engagement.

- Space to relax = Student well-being

One of the key topics that came up during the development of the UNICOMM Project is student well-being and the support provided by HEIs in this area. In the busy student life, it is the role of institutions to signal that it is okay to pause, do something for yourself, and simply be present together in the moment.

How we explored meaning of safer space among students

Listening to students' needs, challenges and values

Students as experts

- Students acted as partners and co-creators of the results (e.g. publication, video tutorial)

Design and creative thinking tools

- Creative brainstorming using techniques such as collage making
- Moodboard creation
- Persona

Video tutorial on safer space

- Script outline created together with students
- Final version reviewed and approved by students

Evaluation

- Ongoing feedback and reflection integrated throughout the project

Safer space for student participation

How can we “arrange” it?

Safer space for student participation

How can we “arrange” it?

Important values → respect, honesty, equality, and freedom

- Let's listen to the needs and challenges of students.
- Let's listen to ideas and be ready to support them.
- Let's be flexible.
- Let's treat students as co-creators of this space.
- Let's take care of the friendly nature of the space – including its physical aspects (accessibility, arrangement of space, sounds, music).
- Let's create cooperation/participation agreements with participants.

Safer space for student participation

How can we “arrange” it?

- Let's propose activities that connect diverse participants- design initiatives that are genuinely inclusive, without asking any sort of eligibility questions or emphasising that a particular project is for group X, while another might be more suited for group Y.
- Let's create initiatives with a “low threshold for entry”.
- Let's organize creative activities that allow students to relax and "clear their minds" without the pressure to improve themselves.
- Let's remember to provide snacks and coffee 😊
- Let's appreciate participants' willingness to engage and their participation.
- Let's maintain friendly and clear communication - let's adapt the medium and message to the recipients.
